EL SEGUNDO, Calif., June 11, 2019 -- Beyond Meat, Inc. (NASDAQ: BYND) ("Beyond Meat"), a leader in plant-based meat, announced today that it will release the latest version of the Beyond Burger™, the brand's flagship product, at grocery stores nationwide. Consistent with the brand's approach to innovation that works to close the gaps between its plant-based meats and their animal protein equivalents through rapid and relentless innovation, the latest version of the Beyond Burger patty is the brand's next step forward in its vision of building the Future of Protein®.

The new, meatier Beyond Burger features marbling designed to melt and tenderize like traditional ground beef. Made using a blend of pea, mung bean and rice proteins that offer a complete protein source, the blend of proteins provides a meatier taste and texture that mimics the chew and juiciness of beef.

"The new Beyond Burger is the next step in our journey toward building meat directly from plants that delivers a consumer experience indistinguishable from its animal protein equivalent," said Ethan Brown, Beyond Meat Founder and CEO.

The Beyond Burger is the world's first plant-based burger that looks, cooks and satisfies like beef, but is made entirely from plants without GMOs, soy or gluten. Last summer, the Beyond Burger rose to be the #1 selling patty (by unit) in the meat case at one of the nation's largest conventional retailer's Southern California chain for 12 consecutive weeks.

Just in time for the official start of summer, the new, meatier Beyond Burger will begin shipping the week of June 10th. Full rollout of the new, meatier Beyond Burger in retail may take a few weeks so fans should look for the red “now even meatier” tab on packaging to know the new Beyond Burger has arrived in stores near them.

New patty, same cutting-edge approach

Beyond Meat uses simple plant-based ingredients applied in fresh ways to build meat directly from plants. Peas, mung bean and rice provide the protein, beets provide the meaty red hue, and coconut oil and cocoa butter provide melty, mouthwatering marbling that creates a juicy texture that is closer to traditional ground beef than ever before. Other product highlights of the new, meatier Beyond Burger include:

- More neutral flavor and aroma profile
- Packed with 20g of plant-based protein per 4oz patty
- Made without GMOs, soy or gluten
- OK Kosher Certified
- Simplified ingredient list
